Contents

Foreword ........................................................................................................................................... 1

OPENING LECTURE

Patricia Lysaght

SIEF International Ethnological Food Research Group: Genesis, Aims and Progress ............................. 5

PART I: THE INTERNET AS LOCAL, NATIONAL AND GLOBAL COOKBOOK AND CULINARY RESEARCH TOOL

Violetta Krawczyk-Wasilewska

A Global Food Tale in the Age of the Internet .................................................................................. 23

Silke Bartsch, Christine Brombach and Gertrud Winkler

The Role of Internet Recipes in Cooking ......................................................................................... 33

Aristea Baschali and Antonia-Leda Matalas

The Comeback of Homemade Foods and the Role of the Web. The Case of Non-Alcoholic Fermented Beverages ........................................................................................................... 45

Maja Godina Golija

When Old Meets New. The Demonstration of Traditional Slovene Dishes and Locally Produced Food on the Internet .................................................................................................................... 55

Aleksandra Krupa-Lawrynowicz

Mushrooms: Polish Traditions and Modern Practices. Online Examples ........................................... 65

PART II: FOOD, MARKETING, AND THE INTERNET

Déirdre D'Auria and Patricia Lysaght

The Online Promotion of Irish Food as a Tourist Attraction ......................................................... 77

Manon Boulianne and Claudia Laviolette

Virtual Food Representations. An Analysis of “Local Food” Discourse in Quebec ........................... 93

Naoto Minami

Communication of Food Information by Means of the Internet in Contemporary Japan ................ 103
Fionnuala Carson Williams
The Use of Proverbs in the Promotion of Food on the Internet .......... 115

Ewa Kopczyńska
Novelty with a Traditional Twist: Food Co-Operatives as Short Food Chains in the Global Network ................................................................. 125

Anna Mlekodaj
A Local Food Product and the Ethno-Future: The Online Case of Polish Mountaineers’ Regional Cheese “Oscypek” ........................................ 133

PART III: THE INTERNET AND FOOD VALUES: ETHICS, AESTHETICS, ENVIRONMENT, HEALTH AND LIFESTYLE

Una A. Robertson
Slow Food: Scotland ........................................................................ 143

Ivanche Dimitrievski, Philippos Papadopoulos and Rodica Arpasanu
Should the Mediterranean Diet be Viewed as a Fully-Fledged Public Discourse, or as Part of a Wider Food and Wellness Narrative? An Internet-Based Study ........................................................................ 151

Yrsa Lindqvist
Seasonal Food in a Virtual Basket – A Campaign for Environmental Sustainability .................................................................................. 163

Astra Spalvėna
Picture Me Perfect: The Aesthetics of Food in Online Photographs .... 173

Rafał Pilarek
“Cabane à Sucre” on the Internet ........................................................ 183

PART IV: FOOD, GENDER, IDENTITY AND THE INTERNET

Rogéria Campos de Almeida Dutra
When Men go to the Kitchen: Food and Gender in Brazilian Websites .... 193

Laura Solanilla and F. Xavier Medina
Gastronomy and Social Networks: Heritage and Food Blogging in Catalonia ..................................................................................................... 201

Magdalena Tomaszewska – Bolałek
Homo Gourmand and Homo Cooking: Two Main Culinary Tribes of the Internet Era ................................................................. 209
PART V: FOOD BLOGGING AS A NEW GENRE

Anikó Báti
A Hungarian Example ................................................................. 221

Katarzyna Orszulak-Dudkowska
Food Blogs in Relation to Culinary Tradition. A Polish Example ........... 231

Klaudyna Hebda
Food – Blogging – Identity: Free Expression or Lifetime Project? ........... 241

PART VI: FOOD: ANCIENT AND MEDIEVAL IN THE LIGHT OF INTERNET SOURCE

Zofia Rzeźnicka
Ancient and Byzantine Food and the Internet ..................................... 253

Johanna Maria van Winter
A Database of Medieval Plant Names ............................................. 263

List of Contributors .................................................................. 271